Micro breweries 'risk going out of business' due to tax change plans by government, warns MP

Report by Tom Martin

A CHANGE to beer duty for microbreweries "risks putting some out of business."

That's the claim of MP Bill Esterson who says he has been contacted by brewers dismayed by government plans to lower the threshold for small brewer duty relief from 5,000 hectolitres (HL) per year to 2,100HL.

The changes mean some small breweries will pay more tax, and there will be a disincentive for others to grow their businesses. Currently brewers pay only 50% of the normal duty on production up to 5000HL.

Les O'Grady, director and head brewer of Neptune Brewery in Maghull, told Sefton Central MP Mr Esterson, "This will have a drastic influence on the craft brewing industry in this country. There has been a rapid increase in micro breweries operating in all regions bringing innovative and exciting products to market and creating jobs helped in the main by small brewer duty relief.

"The brewing industry has been hit hard

Les O'Grady with Bill Esterson on a pre-coronavirus visit to the Neptune Brewery by the COVID pandemic and there has been little in the way of assistance helping us on the way out as well.

"At present Neptune Brewery is under the 2100HL per year margin but with year on year growth and investment in new equipment we have the capacity to go above. However, with the new proposals there is no financial incentive to do this, ultimately we will work harder with no end reward."

Mr Esterson said: "This will have a massive impact on the craft brewing industry. Micro breweries help bring new products to market and create jobs, and this is helped by the duty relief that small brewers can claim.

"By lowering the threshold the government risks stagnating the creative side of the industry. Where is the incentive to innovate and take chances?

"By paying a higher rate of duty, small breweries, without the economies of scale of the bigger breweries, will see their margins squeezed. It will lead to higher costs to the trade and ultimately the customer.

"It is likely to affect consumer choice and quality through the impact on innovation. Of immediate concern is the loss of jobs in the industry and the closure of businesses both in brewing and in retail.

"I have written to the Chancellor to raise my concerns and those of the micro brewers in my constituency. He needs at the very least to delay this until the economy and industry has had the chance to recover. This is the precisely the wrong measure at precisely the wrong time."

Man admits setting fire to Liver Building during Liverpool FC celebrations

A young man who deliberately discharged a firework at the Royal Liver Building on Liverpool's riverfront has admitted his guilt.

The firework caused considerable damage to the Grade 1 listed building in the incident which took place during celebrations after Liverpool FC's Premier League title win.

Matthew Eggesden, 19, pleaded guilty on July 30 at the city's crown court to arson involving damaging by fire the building intending to destroy or damage it or being reckless whether it would be destroyed or damaged on June 26.

His barrister Simon Driver said that the defendant has no previous convictions and asked for a pre-sentence report to be prepared.

"He accepts deliberately firing the rocket in the direction of the building by being reckless," said Mr Driver.

Judge Andrew Menary, QC, the Recorder of Liverpool adjourned

sentence until August 21 but warned Eggesden "that must not be taken as any indication as to sentence."

The judge said he had seen a number of different figures for the value of the damage, which will be clarified at the sentence hearing, and Mr Driver confirmed that Eggesden had expressed a desire to pay compensation.

The court heard that Eggesden, of Turning Lane, Scarisbrick, is in full time employment and lives with his supportive family, who were present in the public gallery. Eggesden was released on conditional bail and must not enter Liverpool city centre.

County plan to abolish councils slammed by West Lancs leader

Report by Danielle Thompson

‘Local democracy will be even further eroded just so Cllr Driver can be called the Mayor of Lancashire’

Under the plan, the 131-year-old county council would itself be abolished, along with all 12 district authorities and the two standalone councils in Blackpool and Blackburn with Darwen.

The county would be carved up into three ‘unitary’ councils covering central and southern parts of the county (Preston, South Ribble, Chorley and West Lancashire), a broad western and northern area (Blackpool, Wyre, Fylde, Lancaster and Ribbles Valley) and the east (Blackburn with Darwen, Burnley, Rossendale, Hyndburn and Pendle).

The statement continued: “For many years, Lancashire’s complicated and fragmented administrative structures have been a barrier to the county benefiting from the devolution deals that have flourished elsewhere in the North West and England. These deals have given a major economic boost to other regions, allowing them to speak with one clear and unified voice through an elected mayor.

“Now, in a major development, council leader Geoff Driver CBE has outlined a roadmap that could lead to the establishment of a Lancashire Combined Authority and elected mayor to be the voice of Lancashire.”

The roadmap envisages abolishing the 15 council bodies that currently comprise Lancashire and replacing them with a streamlined structure that would see three councils responsible for the delivery of services to the people of Lancashire.

This would then pave the way for the election of a mayor for the whole county and the creation of the Lancashire Combined Authority.

Cllr Driver, is then quoted in the statement: “For far too long Lancashire has missed out on the benefits of devolution because of internal squabbles about how our structures are organised.

“These bold and ambitious proposals represent a once-in-a-generation change that will transform Lancashire and benefit everyone who lives in this great county.” The roadmap will now be worked up into firm proposals which will be submitted to central government. The Roadmap to Recovery document details how urgent action is needed to safeguard the economy of Lancashire and to help it flourish in the future. It reveals how there has been a 31% county wide increase in Jobseeker’s Allowance applicants – with the largest increase being in West Lancashire with 56%. Lancashire County Council leader, Tory Geoff Driver, believes that the county’s “complicated and fragmented administrative structures”

West Lancashire Borough Council Leader

have prevented Lancashire reaping reward from the devolution deals that have helped other parts of the country such as the neighbouring Liverpool City Region and its Metro Mayor Steve Rotherham.

Reacting to Cllr Driver and the ruling Conservative group’s ‘major development’ announcement, West Lancs Borough Council Leader, Labour’s Cllr Ian Moran responded: “For many years Cllr

Driver refused to engage with the district leaders on the issue of a combined authority and he very rarely attended meetings. When he did start to engage, after we made him Chair of the shadow combined authority, he did nothing but scheme to create a Lancashire super authority.

“I, along with opposition leaders here in West Lancashire, are concerned with Cllr Driver’s plans and whether it will help West Lancs residents or the businesses that operate here.

“The danger is that local democracy will be even further eroded just so Cllr Driver can be called the Mayor of Lancashire.

“We will support proposals that are in the best interests of West Lancashire”.

Labour group leader on the County Council-Azhar Ali said that Lancashire was being “sold down the river”.

‘Endless discussions’

“I’m shocked that while the country is in a crisis, the only thing the Lancashire Conservatives can think about is reorganising the deckchairs on the Titanic to save their own jobs,” County Cllr Ali added.

The Liberal Democrats at County Hall are opposed to both reorganisation and the proposed new mayor. Group leader David Whipp said it was “not the right thing and not the right time”.

“It is beyond belief that while we are dealing with a public health emergency, the people who ought to be working their socks off to help keep people alive are instead staring at their naval.

“Energy and effort will now be diverted into these endless discussions, which will only end up with local residents losing control.

“Power must be available at the most local level, so that people are able to influence decisions – to lose that would be a tragedy,” County Cllr Whipp warned.

A more detailed proposal is now being put forward by the county for government approval, possibly as soon as the beginning of September.

A majority of county councillors in Lancashire would also have to support the changes before they could be placed before ministers and taken forward.

£200k funding to combat theft and burglary in Skem

By Danielle Thompson

FUNDING worth almost £200,000 has been secured to tackle thefts and burglary in problem hotspots across Skelmersdale.

The announcement from the Home Office comes after two successful bids were submitted by the Police and Crime Commissioner, Clive Grunshaw.

Police and Crime Commissioners were invited to bid for a share of the Safer Streets Fund, with each project eligible for a grant of up to £550,000.

The funding will go towards a range of crime cutting measures including installing CCTV, alleygating, improved back gates and doors to properties where the existing ones are substandard as well as installing motion sensor lights.

The package of measures will aim to reduce crime in areas where burglary and theft have been highlighted as an issue.

Lancashire Police and Crime Commissioner, Clive Grunshaw said: “This is welcome news and the funding will go some way to deterring burglary, thefts and other crimes.

“I am consistently told by Lancashire residents that tackling theft and burglary in their areas should be a priority for Lancashire Police.

“These crime prevention measures are proven to work and will make criminals think twice before engaging in illegal activities. It was clear from research done by my office that simple measures such as alley gates, CCTV and better locks on doors can reduce crime significantly.

“I want the people of Lancashire to feel safe in their communities and homes. Knowing that these prevention measures are in place will go some way to doing that.

“Tackling crime and reoffending is a key priority in my police and crime plan and it is welcome that this funding will help achieve that aim.”

He has been awarded more than £700,000 of funding for projects in hotspots across Lancashire, with Skelmersdale awarded £197,500. Measures include Public Open Space CCTV Operated by the Council, street lighting environmental improvements including pruning and removing shrubbery and bushes, motorbike barriers, bespoke home security packages, improved back gates and doors, motion sensor security lights, alleygating and green space improvement.

Parents urged to claim Child Benefit

WEST Lancashire parents are being urged to claim Child Benefit, even if they have not yet been able to register the birth of their new-borns, to ensure they don’t miss out.

Between April and July 2019, HM Revenue and Customs (HMRC) received 49,637 more new Child Benefit claims compared to the same period in 2020.

Claims can only be backdated by up to three months, so it’s important that new parents claim as soon as they can to receive the maximum support available.

Usually, to claim Child Benefit parents must register their child’s birth first. However, with many local register offices operating at reduced capacity and some parents unable to go to their local register office because of COVID-19, HMRC announced in April that parents can claim Child Benefit without having to register their child’s birth first during the pandemic.

First time parents will need to fill in a Child Benefit claim form CH2 found online and send it to the Child Benefit Office. If they haven’t registered the birth because of COVID-19, they should add a note with their claim to let us know.

If they already claim Child Benefit, they can complete the form or add their new-born’s details over the telephone on 0300 200 3100. They will need their National Insurance number or Child Benefit number.

Borough gears up for Government's new 'Cycling and Walking Plan'

Report by Tom Martin

A CYCLING and Walking Plan has been published by the Government to set out a "long term vision to increase active travel."

Schemes are being looked at locally or are already in place, such as the 'pop-up' cycle lanes which were recently introduced in West Lancs, but the Government's 33-point plan commits to better streets for walking and cycling and will be overseen by a new body called 'Active Travel England'.

The 'ambitious' plan follows the Government's Obesity Strategy and focuses on the role walking and cycling can play in getting the nation moving, along with its function in reducing carbon emissions.

Publishing the report, the Department for Transport said the new plan aims to build on the significant increase in the number of people cycling during the pandemic. It sets out a comprehensive, long term vision to increase active travel and embed the benefits of walking and cycling into how we live, work and get around.

Living Streets, the UK charity for everyday walking, supports the plan to encourage more walking and cycling. The charity is part of the Walking and Cycling Alliance which has been calling for improved infrastructure for walking and cycling, along with changes to the Highway code.

Jenni Wiggle, Interim CEO, Living Streets said: "This announcement is fantastic news for walking and cycling. Investing in safe, convenient and attractive conditions for walking and cycling brings a range of benefits that will help deliver the government's priorities around obesity and climate change."

The plan will come as a boost to cyclists

As part of the package of measures, the Government has also launched a consultation on its proposed revisions to the Highway Code to improve road safety for cyclists, pedestrians and horse riders. It hopes to introduce a 'hierarchy of road users, clarify pedestrian and cyclist priority, and establish safer overtaking.

- The consultation and response information can be found at:

The consultation closes on October 27, 2020

Calls to end cruel puppy smuggling trade after sick dogs drenched in oil found in back of van

Report by Danielle Thompson

CALLS are being made to end the cruel puppy smuggling trade after dogs were found 'drenched in oil' being smuggled into the UK.

West Lancs MP Rosie Cooper is backing a campaign from the charity Dogs Trust, who warned the public about the perils of buying dogs via online adverts after rescuing dozens of smuggled pups since the start of lockdown worth tens of thousands of pounds.

The dogs were destined to be sold on to unsuspecting UK buyers during the peak of the lockdown puppy-buying rush.

Ms Cooper recently attended an MP webinar on 'Puppy Smuggling: Business as Usual for Illegal Importers' where she learned more about the rise in demand and continued her support for Dogs Trust.

She said: "I'm very pleased to support Dogs Trust in calling for an end to cruel puppy trade. These illegally imported puppies suffer the most harrowing of journeys at the hands of these unscrupulous dealers."

"If my West Lancashire constituents are considering buying a puppy I would

The puppies were found in an appalling condition, drenched in oil and suffering from diarrhoea strongly urge you to consider the guidance put forward by the Dogs Trust and thoroughly research who and where you are buying from."

Since the beginning of lockdown on March 23, when demand for puppies began increasing rapidly, Dogs Trust has rescued 43 dogs via its Puppy Pilot scheme that were illegally imported into the UK from central and eastern Europe, with an estimated street value of £80,000.

The charity has also saved 12 heavily pregnant dogs, who have given birth to 53 puppies worth around an additional £100,000 to cruel smugglers.

The latest innocent victims are a group of six terrified pups, found covered in sticky oil in the back of a van, that would have been sold on to UK dog lovers as puppy smugglers continued to operate and take advantage of the demand for dogs during the coronavirus lockdown.

Dogs Trust believes this is just the tip of the iceberg of the cruel trade and is warning potential dog owners not to be 'dogfished', as it is all too easy to be scammed into buying dogs like these via online adverts.

Ms Cooper added: "Smuggled puppies often haven't had the important early life experiences of socialisation with people and habituation with everyday objects which help prevent them being fearful in later life."

"They are often forced to endure long journeys from Central and Eastern European countries, such as Poland and Hungary, with little to no food or water and no toilet breaks."

The Puppy Pilot scheme has rescued 1,167 dogs since it began in December 2015 with most popular breeds including Dachshunds, French Bulldogs, Maltese and even larger breeds such as Chow Chows.

For more information and advice about how to avoid being misled when buying a puppy advertised online, search 'Dogfished' or visit the website: www.dogs-trust.org.uk/dogfished

Online talk to give insight into 'dangers' of gene-edited food

A CAMPAIGNER from Skelmersdale, who is against gene-edited foods, wants locals to join an online talk today (Wednesday, August 5).

The talk - by the The Alliance for Food Purity - is called 'Gene Editing: Myths and Truths' and takes place today (Wednesday) at 3pm.

It will be given by Dr Michael Antoniou, a London-based molecular geneticist who uses genetic engineering techniques, including gene-editing, in medical research.

Local campaigner Nicola Escott said: "Alarming, unregulated, inadequately tested, and unlabelled gene-edited foods could soon be on our dinner plates if given the go-ahead in the upcoming US/UK trade deal."

Anyone interested in the talk can email: claire@gmwatch.org.

Fears for future of town's Tui store

Ormskirk's Tui travel store faces an uncertain future after the chain revealed plans to close almost a third of their UK high street stores.

The national firm is set to shut 166 of their 500-plus stores, affecting up to 900 jobs.

Bosses at the UK's largest tour operator said it will not release the list of stores at risk during the consultation period, but added that none of those that have reopened since lockdown will be shut.

This has raised concerns for Tui's Aughton Street store (shown, left) which is currently still closed, according to the firm's own website.

Tui bosses said they hoped to keep on 630 workers in a mix of sales/home-working roles and in remaining stores and say that the decision was made after changes in customer behaviour, including a shift to online. Around 350 Tui retail stores will survive the closures.

The outlets set to close will be chosen 'based on a number of factors, including local market data and 'predictions on the future of travel.'

Manuel Cortes, general secretary of the TSSA - which represents staff in the travel trade industry - is calling travel firms to join them and jointly lobby the government for a 'bespoke package of measures' to save the industry.

Have you spotted this 'very rare' collector's item?

A KEEN collector of vintage stoneware bottles is appealing for a specific brand which features an illustration of Ormskirk Parish Church.

Stan Wilson, 73, has converted his garage into a bar to indulge his 1800s-era ginger beer and whisky stoneware bottle-collecting hobby and would like to buy one that he has had his eye on for a while - but he can't track it down.

Mr Wilson, who is from Maghull, said: "I am looking for a stoneware ginger beer which is from Ormskirk - which depicts the parish church.

"Geo Cammack was the merchant and I am hoping that a Champion reader will be able to locate one for me. There is a good reward offered."

Foster home needed for four children to keep them together

Report by Danielle Thompson

CHIEFS at Lancashire County Council have launched a special appeal to find a loving foster home for three brothers and their sister.

The children are currently living with two different foster families, but need to be together. The brothers and sister, Harry aged 15, Arlo aged 12, Flynn aged eight and Lilly aged six, (not their real names) have a close bond and it is not in their best interests to be separated. Being able to keep their ties with each other will help them to be able to thrive in the future.

County Councillor Phillippa Williamson, cabinet member for children, young people and schools, is urging anyone who is considering fostering to think about whether they can help.

She said: "We have a family of four children who have been through a lot in their young lives.

"They are all very close and supportive of each other. We need to find them a permanent, long-term fostering family where they can grow up together.

"We are doing all we can to keep these children together. In cases like this, the family relationships take on extra importance. Being able to remain together will be an important source of comfort, strength and support.

"We often have to find fostering families for brother and sister groups, but this is a big number to try to accommodate – hence the appeal to the public. I'm hoping that we can encourage people to at least think this over."

People are being asked to consider whether a change in their circumstances caused by the current coronavirus situation could leave them well placed to provide a loving home for these children. It is hoped that foster carers who are currently taking a break from fostering and retired foster carers will come forward as they already have the skills and know how important fostering is for making a real difference to a local child's life.

Becoming a foster carer could also be an ideal opportunity for anyone who is looking for a new challenge. Also, anyone who has considered fostering previously, and whose circumstances are now different, are asked to come forward.

There is also a generous allowance for both new and experienced foster carers, who can expect to receive between £250 and £428 per week for each child they care for.

New foster carers can also benefit from a new academy created to support their growth and development, a mentoring scheme and the support of an experienced foster carer buddy.

They will also receive specialised training and any necessary support from a team of psychologists and emotional health workers.

Lancashire County Council welcomes new foster carers from all different backgrounds. Foster carers need to be over 21 and have a spare room available by the end of the assessment process.

Anyone interested in finding out more about Harry, Arlo, Flynn and Lilly should contact the fostering team on 0300 123 6723. To find out more about becoming a foster carer visit www.lancashire.gov.uk/fostering or call 0300 123 6723.

Concern over traffic problems at schools ahead of reopening

CALLS are being made for school travel arrangements to be organised ahead of a return to education in September.

The all-party committee of MPs top spending watchdog, the Public Accounts Committee (PAC), has accused the government of failing to plan for job losses, school closures and the failure to obtain PPE equipment to protect front line staff.

With children set to return to schools right across Lancashire in September, all schools are reviewing their risk assessments as they consider the guidance around the coronavirus.

Prior to the pandemic, there was growing conflict around inappropriate parking by parents with each other, local communities and the schools, especially at arriving and going home times.

This could be made worse as more children are dropped off in private cars rather than public transport.

Cllr John Fillis, Deputy Leader of the Lancashire Labour Group, said: "Our schools have and will continue to do a fantastic job in supporting the education of children as safely as possible. But with the changing requirements from home to school travel we will see, staged start times, reduction in regular bus availability as well as some dedicated services failing to operate.

"All these changes will see the number of children arriving by private car increase dramatically.

"We already had conflicts across Lancashire between parents inconsiderate parking around schools and local communities before the COVID crisis.

"Schools cannot deal with this directly it's the responsibility of the county council to step up and step in to bring people together."

Lancashire County Council had not responded at the time of going to print.

Decluttering and downsizing in later life

Anyone who has ever moved home knows that sorting, packing, and unpacking can be a time-consuming and strenuous process.

With Adlington Retirement Living help is on hand each step of the way, so you can look forward to the next chapter of retirement.

Alexandra Johnson, Sales and Marketing Director, explains: "Our team do everything they can to make each move into one of our apartments as stress-free and positive as possible, from offering part exchanges to providing a consultation with a Senior Move Manager. Our specialist partner, The Senior Move Partnership, offers services to take the stress, hard work and worry out of moving."

Michelle and her team offer a range of services depending on each client's needs.

"Some clients are happy to sort through their belongings themselves and might just want my help organising where it's all going to. Others might want help sorting through everything - from the contents of their wardrobes and drawers to their kitchens, lofts, sheds and garages. We take one room at a time and sit together so they can decide what they want to do with each item and then we make it happen."

"Sometimes a client might ask us to arrange for treasured possessions to be passed to family members. Other items might no longer be required, and we will arrange for them to be sent to auction, sold, donated or recycled."

Every Homeowner moving into an Adlington development receives eight hours of support from a handyman. Alexandra Johnson said: "It's an extra helping hand that makes a big difference to our Homeowners."

The whole moving process can be taken care of, leaving you to look forward to settling into your new home.

Senior Move Manager Michelle Park and her colleagues create a bespoke plan of support based on individual needs.

Michelle said: "The most important part of our job is getting to know each Homeowner, building a rapport with them and finding out how they would like us to help them."

Young people urged to let their creative writing juices flow!

YOUNG people across the borough are being challenged to use their experiences of lockdown to help spark a career in creative writing.

Future U, which works to increase career aspirations and higher education for young people in Lancashire, has launched 'The Lockdown Diaries' - a writing competition for 14-19 year olds - to create a range of short stories, poems or journal entries inspired by the pandemic and resulting lockdown.

Lancashire's Future U works with a network of schools, in addition to colleges, higher education providers and local agencies, including Edge Hill University and West Lancashire College.

The challenge is designed to make young people think about future careers in creative writing, from becoming an author all the way through to script writers, copywriters and even English teachers.

Young people are being encouraged to write either a fiction or non-fiction piece, with the top 10 submissions to be published in a special anthology and the overall winner claiming a free Amazon Kindle to continue their love of reading.

Entries need to be longer than 500 words and can be submitted either on the Future U website or via pupils' schools. All entries should be submitted before the deadline of Saturday, August 15.

Entries will be judged by international author Philippa Holloway. Philippa's short stories and travel writing have been published across the world. In addition she teaches English Literature and Creative Writing at Edge Hill University.

She said: "The pandemic lockdown has affected everyone in so many different ways, and I believe it is vital that we take time to think about, and process, its impact. Writing about the situation can help us understand it, and ourselves, more clearly.

International author Philippa Holloway will judge entries

"I can't wait to read stories by the young people of Lancashire and to hear what it means to them."

Dr Emma Deeks, Senior Coordinator at Future U, added: "We know that for many young people, having to stay home and miss out on normal life like school and seeing friends has been difficult, but it has also provided an opportunity to experience different things and have more time to spend thinking and creating."

"We wanted to design a project that allowed young people to express this creativity and potentially inspire them to pursue a career within the creative industries."

Since launching in 2017, Future U has held more than 800 events and activities to support over 16,000 young people to think about applying for university.

The programme works alongside the county's four universities and 10 colleges throughout Lancashire, including Edge Hill University and West Lancashire College.

Eat Out to Help Out scheme is underway across the borough

RESTAURANTS, bars and cafes from across West Lancashire have signed up for the Government's 'Eat Out to Help Out' Scheme.

The scheme, designed to help the hospitality trade recover from the lockdown, will give diners a 50% discount up to £10 per person.

It is now active across the country and will continue throughout August to give a much-needed boost to the hard-hit sector.

For this month only, the discount will be applied from Monday to Wednesday on all food and non-alcoholic drinks.

Eat Out to Help Out stickers and posters have been placed in the windows of participating restaurants, cafes, bars and other establishments across the borough and the logo means locals can take full use of the discount.

Chancellor of the Exchequer Rishi Sunak said: "Our restaurants, cafes and bars play a vital role in our economy, employing more than a million people. They have been hit hard by coronavirus, so it's vital we do everything we can to help them recover. Our Eat Out to Help Out scheme is designed to get more customers through the door - protecting jobs by giving businesses the confidence to retain and hire staff.

"Tens of thousands of businesses across the country have already signed up, and from this week you'll be able to find one near you with the online finder."

The number of outlets that have so far signed up for the scheme in the North West is 5,048 (as of midday Friday, July 31) although this number only relates to businesses that have less than 26 outlets. The figure that includes larger restaurant chains in our region is higher.

More than 72,000 outlets across the UK have so far signed up to the Eat Out to Help Out scheme.

Participating outlets must wait seven days from registration to make their first claim with all eligible claims being paid within five working days.

The online restaurant finder to search for participating outlets using a postcode, is:

Learning disability awareness training to be delivered to all health and social care staff

by Danielle Thompson

ALL health and social care staff in Lancashire will receive training from health professionals working with people with learning disability and their families in a bid to ensure better healthcare for people who have autism or a learning disability.

Lancashire and South Cumbria NHS Foundation Trust will deliver the training, in conjunction with the Pathways Associates charity, across all health and social care settings.

The project will be delivered over the next 12 months and is known as Oliver McGowan training. Oliver lived with cerebral palsy, epilepsy, autism and learning disability and died in 2016 aged 18. His mother Paula has dedicated her life to campaigning for better health care for people who have autism and learning disability.

All training will be produced in collaboration with self-advocates and families and then co-delivered to frontline staff in all appropriate settings across Lancashire and South Cumbria, including hospitals and care homes. It is estimated that around 1.5 million people in the UK have a learning disability including 351,000 children.

In 2019, the government set out their commitment to mandatory training in their consultation response in 'Right to be heard'. This was in response to recommendations made in the second annual Learning Disabilities Mortality Review report.

Stuart Sheridan, who is the Learning Disability and Autism Transformation Lead at the trust said: "A learning disability can affect the way a person understands information and how they communicate, so it's really important people working in a health and social care have a greater understanding of this so they can provide the very best care and support. We wanted to make this training as impactful as possible, so we're delighted to be working with self-advocates, family members and Pathways Associates to develop it. It has the potential to have a big impact on improving the experience that people with learning disabilities have when they are receiving healthcare and by doing so reduce health inequalities that someone with a learning disability might face."

The trust is one of 56 organisations across the country to be asked to develop and deliver Oliver McGowan training. Oliver's death highlighted the need for health and social care staff to have a greater understanding of learning disabilities to help improve their skills and confidence when delivering care.

Oliver's mum Paula McGowan, who grew up in the North West, led a campaign for more training and explained: "Oliver's death could have been avoided and better training for healthcare staff might have made all the difference.

"I am extremely pleased to see that the new training is now coming closer to being a reality. I am proud that it will carry Oliver's name."

Covid - cover for NHS sell off

The government is using the Covid crisis as an excuse for hastening the privatisation of our NHS.

Instead of investing in our existing NHS tracing system staffed by Public Health professionals, it has set up a new private system with a budget 100 times more than Public Health England's annual budget of £90million.

Instead of supporting public testing laboratories it set up a totally new private system (Pillar 2) with firms like Serco and G4S. Serco, which was criticised for failing to call back 450,000 breast cancer patients after it was discovered a breast cancer screening hotline was manned by staff with just one hour of training, and no medical background. Serco, which only last year were fined £22.9m by the Serious Fraud Office for tracking tagged dead prisoners and G4S who were fined £44m for the same 'mistake'.

Many of us also remember G4S for deserting their London Olympics security obligations at the 11th hour.

In two weeks, Serco's 18,000 trackers contacted only 10,000 contacts while local public health teams with far fewer staff contacted 77,600.

And then while NHS front line staff were literally dying for lack of PPE, the Tories bypassed the NHS purchasing system, ignored existing British suppliers and manufacturers and placed an order for PPE for £108 million with a chocolate wholesaler.

And don't get me started on Hancock's App. In March the government bought 8,000 hospital beds, 1,200 ventilators and 20,000 qualified staff from private hospitals while 4 in 10, that's 37,000 NHS beds, were empty.

So elderly people were discharged into local care homes bringing Covid infection right into the homes of our most vulnerable residents while beds stood empty in Southport and Ormskirk Hospital Trust.

All over the country A&E departments are being shut down, Chorley has lost its A&E and locals on the Wirral are fighting to keep their walk-in centre.

Here, children's A&E which was spilt from Southport has now been moved from Ormskirk to Alder Hey from 10pm-8am.

How are you supposed to get to Alder Hey with a sick child on public transport in the middle of the night?

NHS staff worked up to 11 unpaid hours a week during the crisis, yet the government have just left nurses out of the recent public sector pay rise. Talk about a kick in the teeth. Seems nurses will have to pay their bills with applause.

If the Tory government continues to accelerate healthcare privatisation during the Covid crisis will we still have an NHS this time next year?

Michèle Martin
SOSH (Save Southport & Ormskirk Hospitals)

Why can't Southport follow Ormskirk's free parking lead

I cannot but agree with Michael Prendergast (Champion Letters)

I drove to Ormskirk twice in a week, and found that there was free parking each time.

The town on both occasions was busy with shoppers, all spending money.

What a contrast to the quiet streets of Southport with their closed shops.

We have now decided to visit Ormskirk more regularly, particularly on Market days.

Even before lock down it was cheaper to park in Ormskirk. It is obvious that West Lancs have decided to invest in creating business, rather than extract the last gasps of the local economy.

Tom Heath,
Southport

A pagoda or a gazebo?

The recent talk of the pagoda in Ormskirk has me quite confused.

A pagoda is defined in my dictionary as a religious building, typically having many tiers, and with an ornamented, projecting roof on each level.

I am not aware of any such building in Ormskirk.

The structure on Wheatsheaf Walk that is being talked about much more resembles the description of a gazebo, a small building with a roof and open sides.

I would be most gratified if future references were more precise in their terminology.

CM,
Ormskirk

Count your blessings - even if they are few

The plight of people such as 'PK' (West Lancs Champion Letters, July 22) just highlights the attitudes and expectations of people and society these days.

I think the answer to PK's problems lie right under her own nose, but has been distorted by this sense of entitlement, expectation of rights, and a misunderstanding that the rest of society and the tax payer is responsible for supporting the lifestyle choices and medical problems of an ever-increasing number of individuals.

If this Covid 19 has taught some of us anything, it is that everyone thinks everyone else is selfish except themselves, expecting everyone else to make all the sacrifices, except themselves.

It seems some expect others to make far more sacrifices, so they don't have to. Your sacrifice may be that 'you' or 'your families' should be the ones to self isolate or wear PPE 24/7... or staying at, or working from, home until the virus is either defeated (naturally) by herd immunity, or becomes treatable? Oh, and of course, to protect the NHS staff, some of whom seem to have the attitude of soldiers signing up to a 'job' and then suddenly being told they have got to do their job and fight a war.

Surely, the answer to your problem PK is, if your daughter is working from home and she is still getting paid, who pays her bills when she is not living with you? What is she doing with the money she is saving, from not commuting every day. Who provides her drinks and lunch when she is at work? So why is she not paying her way towards the household bills in your house at your time of need, if that is the case?

So your husband has been furloughed - he is at least getting some payment to have an extended holiday and do nothing. Unlike the millions of self-employed people and those on zero hour contracts or people like myself who don't qualify for any assistance because they have not yet been running their businesses for three years. And in which they invested all their savings into to provide the jobs for your daughters, sons and husbands, and who have themselves been expected to live and support their families on fresh air for the last four months, and who will be expected to pick up the pieces, at their expense, to recover their businesses (if they can) and still pay their taxes that provide you with the jobs, pensions, and benefits people like you expect to get.

Seems to me, PK, your blessings may be few, but you - and people like you - need to start counting them, and be grateful you live in a country that provides any assistance at all.

Try accepting what you do have and make a few sacrifices yourself. After all, we are in this together... aren't we?

M. Williams,
Seaforth

Time to replace Park Pool

IN response to Roderick Green's letter, I wholeheartedly agree that the present Park Pool facility should be replaced.

Before lockdown, I would regularly inspect it with my colleague and we commend the staff's efforts in maintaining it.

As an 'Independent' OWL Councillor for Knowsley Ward, my colleagues do not necessarily share the same views as myself but, I do have a duty and responsibility to represent the concerns of residents in Knowsley Ward who are in regular contact with me over this issue.

Many local residents would prefer Park Pool to be demolished and rebuilt in its present location or, failing that, built on the outskirts of the town, perhaps midway between Ormskirk and Skelmersdale where there is a robust road network.

This option would not only protect a precious urban greenspace but also prevent more congestion on the already busy County Road, notorious for the many incidents at the Fiveways junction.

Mum's face mask mission in memory of student daughter

Heather raises £4,500 for 'lost child' charity

Report by Tom Martin

A MUM has helped raise more than £4,500 for charity by selling face masks in memory of her daughter, who was an Edge Hill University student.

Heather Evans, who works at Gordon Short Chemist, in Crosby, asked customers to donate material and fabric to be made into face masks for local people to use during the pandemic.

The money will be donated to Love, Jasmine, which offers bereavement support to families that have lost a child.

Heather chose the charity after her 19-year-old daughter Halle O'Brien, a student at Edge Hill University, passed away in January last year.

After Halle collapsed, her family later found out she had died from Group A streptococcal septicaemia, which caused her to contract meningitis.

Heather said: "We have been making face masks from material that has been kindly donated by Gordon Short's Chemist customers to raise funds for the charity Love, Jasmine that have supported us since the loss of Halle."

June Russell, with Halle's brother Leo hard at work making the masks. Right: Halle O'Brien

"My mum, June Russell, with Halle's brother Leo have done an amazing job with the help from my best friend Alma Moore and Halle's other nan Pat Evans."

"We are currently up to £4,500 we are really proud of ourselves and our customers for raising a great amount for the charity supporting them at the moment when there's not much opportunity to fundraise."

Former bingo caller, Cheryl, graduates from Edge Hill with a First class degree

Report by Danielle Thompson

LIFE is tickety-boo for former bingo caller, Cheryl Spofforth, who has graduated from Edge Hill University with a First-Class Honours degree in Early Years Education.

The mum-of-three, 37, from Southport, who has worked in bingo halls since she was a dancing queen at 17, has now called time on her career which led her up the ranks to manager.

Cheryl said: "Bingo was always something I did as a side-line, when I was at school, then while I had my kids, it was never meant to be my career it just ended up that way.

"I loved it, bingo was my life and I worked at various bingo halls across Coventry, Sheffield and most recently Southport. I did all sorts of roles from caller to book sales to manager but the idea of teaching has always been there.

"Having three young children, now five, seven and nine, I always used to be really creative with activities and learning at home, then one day my daughter's teacher said I should be a teacher and that got me thinking."

Despite her panic about returning to study after so many years, Cheryl excelled and was awarded a university academic achievement scholarship award in her second year.

She said: "It's been a fantastic three years. It's been hard balancing being a mum with studying in the evening and working at the bingo every Saturday and Sunday. But having three young children going through early years education at the time did help as it meant I could test some ideas out on them before my placements.

"I hope I've inspired my own children with my work ethic so they know that if they work hard they can get the career they want."

Cheryl has now secured a place on Edge Hill's Masters degree in Child and Adolescent Mental Health and Wellbeing.

Ant in 'Race for Life at Home' rallying call

Report by Danielle Thompson

A DAD who survived testicular cancer is rallying people from West Lancashire to 'Race for Life at Home' this summer to help raise funds for Cancer Research UK.

The charity's annual series of Race for Life 5K, 10K and Pretty Muddy events were cancelled because of the coronavirus outbreak.

But as the nation emerges from lockdown, undeterred women and men are supporting Cancer Research UK by completing a Race for Life at Home challenge on their own in local countryside, neighbourhoods, gardens and behind their front doors!

Ant Bigley, 46, from Southport, is living proof of why research into cancer is so important. In 2008, while working as a police detention officer, he noticed a swelling in his testicle and developed symptoms of overwhelming tiredness. One day the pain got so bad that he was rushed from work to hospital in a squad car and was diagnosed with testicular cancer weeks later.

Ant said: "I had the perfect life, a good family and an excellent network of friends. But my whole life changed when the doctor said I had cancer."

Ant was booked in for urgent surgery to remove the testicle at Liverpool's Broadgreen Hospital, followed by an intensive six-week course of chemotherapy at the city's Clatterbridge Centre.

He said: "Within weeks, I went from a relatively healthy young man to a shell of my former self."

Ant celebrating his recovery

Surgery also affected Ant's mobility and he was reliant on walking aids for a significant amount of time following the operation. He now receives testosterone injections every ten to twelve weeks to maintain his hormone levels. Ant said: "Prior to my diagnosis, martial arts was a huge part of my life. But treatment made this impossible. I was about to take my exam for a black belt when I was diagnosed - another aspect of my life stripped by cancer."

Thankfully Ant's treatment was a success and over a decade later he is enjoying life free of the disease. Following his own experiences, he is now calling on people across the North West to help to kick cancer into shape by getting active with a Race for Life at Home challenge to help raise vital funds.

He said: "Cancer Research UK, and the scientific research that they fund, is being hit hard by the current pandemic, and it upsets me to think about what this might mean for people affected by cancer in the years to come."

'Determined'

"I want to do my bit to make sure research can carry on to save more lives and would encourage everyone across the region to support Race for Life at Home and help this life-saving work continue."

Ant has now returned to practising karate and achieved his long-awaited black belt in the sport last year.

"Cancer will not define me any more and I am determined to turn my story inside out and extract some good from it, by raising awareness and encourage other men to check themselves regularly to help stop cancer taking any more unnecessary lives."

Thanks to the generosity of people across the North West, Race for Life participants last year raised over £2 million to support research into effective treatments for cancer. People can visit raceforlife.org and sign up free for ideas on how they can create their own Race for Life at Home challenge or call 0300 123 0770.

The Nissan Qashqai is the UK's fifth best-selling car

We are asked to lose weight - while we Eat Out to Help Out?

ANYONE doing an undergraduate course in irony will no doubt remember this month well. At the same time that we're all being told to lost 5lb to help the NHS, we can stuff our faces because the government's picking up half the tab if we eat out. Yum!

However, there is apparently another obesity crisis that needs nipping in the bud sooner rather than later. I'm afraid, according to a new campaign that you might have seen doing the rounds in the nationals this week, that our cars are all getting a bit on the podgy side.

So obviously we need to ban the adverts encouraging us all to buy them.

The New Weather Institute's latest Badvertising campaign points out that four in ten vehicles is an SUV (an off-roader, or at least a vehicle purporting to be one).

They claim it's leading to a creep of oversized cars that are too big for our parking spaces, upping pollution unnecessarily and deliberately running over squirrels (okay, I made that last one up).

It sort of has a point. So far this year, Nissan's Qashqai is the nation's fifth best-selling new car, outselling cars like the MINI and the VW Polo, and it quietly dropped the Pulsar two years ago because people didn't want it. Kia's Sportage is in the top ten list too, and VW's Tiguan makes fairly frequent visits to the sharp end of the car sales stats too. Yet I can't imagine that the NWI's solution - a cigarettes-esque advertising ban - is going to make a jot of difference. Dig a little deeper, and for all the talk about SUVs, what it actually wants is measures to curb the most polluting third of new cars sold in the UK and motors that it says are too large for UK parking spaces.

You'd think stretch limos, Lamborghini Aventadors and AMG-tuned S-Class Mercs would be right in the firing line, but the tone of their campaign seems to target anyone with a Range Rover Evoque instead.

In fact, the government already has measures to stop us all going out and buying brand-new G-Class Mercs for the school run; even if you're committed enough to stump up the exorbitantly high road tax on one for the first year, you then have to live with paying more at the pumps, and a bit more again if you're thinking of venturing into London.

SUVs cost more too - a Captur, for instance, starts at £3k more than a Clio - but that still doesn't stop us snapping them up.

I'm far more carrot than stick on this one; surely the solution is to make cleaner cars better, so that people actually want them.

We need to make it worth the carmakers' while to do this, and at the moment the regulations seem to be actively discouraging it.

It's far less profitable to engineer smaller cars for eco-friendly tech, which is why the tiniest hatchbacks are quietly being dropped and why there's a proliferation of hybrid SUV-esque hatchbacks in the first place.

Banning ads on SUVs is nonsense - but I suspect if the government does, it'll probably do it in tandem with grants to boost BMW X5 sales. If it works for food, why not for cars too?
